“GRI reports published after 1st July 2018 should be prepared in accordance with the GRI Standards”¹

Why PwC?

We have been a Certified Training Partner since 2011 and utilise an interactive approach using case studies and group exercises for effective learning. We have conducted over 20 GRI Trainings in the region and have trained participants from various industries and also non-governmental organisations (NGOs).

The Training Course

The Transition to GRI Standards Certified Training module aims to help the users of GRI G4 Guidelines to make a smooth transition to the GRI Standards.

Learning objectives

By the end of the Transition to GRI Standards Certified Training module, participants will be able to :

- ✓ Understand the differences between the GRI G4 Guidelines and the GRI Standards

Who should attend?

- ✓ Current users of the GRI G4 Guidelines

Participants will receive:

- ✓ Training course materials
- ✓ Certificate of Attendance from GRI

Feedback from past participants

“PwC has ensured that the materials are relevant to our context and have included exercises in each session to allow us to apply the principles immediately which have proved very useful.”

“Credit goes to the PwC team for an interactive course with built-in exercises allowing us to apply the theory learnt”

“Overall, it was a good course that helped build a strong understanding of GRI. Good discussions on materiality and identifying stakeholders.”

“The exercises were very helpful to help people understand the challenges they might face in implementing a GRI report in their own companies. Furthermore the exercises were developed to gradually align with the GRI reporting cycle.”
